THE N. Y. TRIBUNE ON THE RADICAL PARTY.

"The party in power has no principles that it has not betrayed; no policy upon which its leaders are agreed; no leaders whose authority is recognized beyond a circle of personal adherents; no cohesion except for the retention of office and power; no title which it dares to publish to confidence except that it flies the flag of a party which once did good and honest work, and deserved to be trusted. It is as if a fleet that had been equipped in the interest of philanthropy to sweep the slave trade from seas, after accomplishing its work had turned to plundering the innocent and preying upon the commerce of the world. It is the Capt. Kidd of modern politics."

"No one can read the newspaper of his neighborhood, whatever its politics, without recognizing the feeling of dissatisfaction with the party and disgust with its self-seeking, wrangling, and unworthy leaders. It is but feebly disguised in the most servile of the organs, and wherever there is any independence at all or wherever the press swings clear of official influence and patronage, it is outspoken and earnest. Only among the holders of office, their satellites and dependents is the course of the party or the policy of the Administration heartily approved or defended. Unfaithfulness to great public trusts, prostitution of office and patronage to the ends of mean and selfish ambition, profligacy and party thieving, pledges broken and promises disregarded, honesty and uprightness at a discount, and meanness and treachery rewarded, bribery and corruption protected, dishonor vindicated and vice thrust shamelessly forward—these and more have done their work.

HEROISM AT SEA.

On Saturday we referred briefly to the rescue of the crew of the Norwegian brig Fortin, by the Cunard steamer Algeria. The following account by an eye-witness is interesting:

The Cunard steamship Algeria, Captain Lott, on her recent trip from this port to Liverpool, experienced a gale of unusual magnitude and duration. Beginning on the morning of the 23d, the gale continued with increasing fury until the 27th ult. The seas following the steamship threatened her destruction, and the whole situation was one of grave apprehension as to the possible result.

On the 26th ult., in the midst of the wildest period of the storm, when the officers were strapped to the bridge and the quartermaster to the wheel, signals of distress were seen and a dismantled brig was discovered in a sinking condition. Without a moment's hesitation, Captain Lott ordered 'all hands on deck,' and began the difficult operation of 'rearing' ship so as to bring her into communication with the shipwrecked sailors. Signals of encouragement were given to cheer the survivors on the disabled vessel, if, indeed, the waves, which were making a clean breach over her, had spared any of the crew.

After an hour passed in bringing the steamship within reach of the vessel, it was decided to send out a life boat, and Captain Lott, from the bridge, addressed the steamship crew, telling them that his doubts as to the possibility of the life boat living in such a sea were so great that he would not order any boat off, but if there were any willing to volunteer he would permit them to go. Instantly a boat's crew was formed headed by Third Officer William Frederick Hartford, with boatswain William White and six brave seamen. The boat was launched with great difficulty, amid the roaring of the wind and the raging of the waves. In the launching the boat was thrown against the screening of the steamer, and Hartford had his right hand nearly drawn from his wrist, having been caught in the tackle, but he grasped the tiller with his left, and in a moment the boat had passed up on a mountain wave mid-ships, and was then carried out of sight. All hearts went up in prayer for that gallant crew, for it was growing dark and the storm seemed to gain fury at every moment.

An hour was passed in breathless suspense when the lifeboat came in view again riding like a gull over the waves. As it neared the steamer, the anxious watchers saw that it contained eight rescued sailors and two dogs. It was at this moment that the peril was most imminent. It seemed as if no human power could devise means by which the poor fellows could safely board the steamer. Ropes thrown to them as they came down on the waves, broke like wisps of straw, and the iron sides of the Algeria offered only certain destruction to their frail bark. At one moment they were as high as the yards, and the next they sank apparently into the depths of the sea.

Many ropes were thrown out over the steamer's sides, and as the life-boat was carried by the waves near the ship, Captain Lott ordered the mate to jump for their lives, and by a Providence as marked as that by which the steamer had been driven out of the course by the gale towards the foundering ship, the distance between the steamer and the life boat was so reduced that the poor fellow succeeded in grasp the ropes, and were hauled on deck exhausted and bruised.

One poor man alone fell between the boat and the steamer, and was cruelly crushed, his collar bone and several ribs having been broken. Exhausted, he lost his hold and sank. Drawn along the steamer's side by the waves, rope after rope was thrown around him, but failed to raise him. Three times did he fall back, and he passed beyond the reach of all but one man. With super human courage, the last man—William White, one of the rescuing crew—coiling his feet around the rigging and throwing himself forward, cast a rope around the sinking man, and he was drawn on deck.—N. Y. Evening Post.

REPAIRS OF THE UNIVERSITY.—By request of Col. William Le Saumdere Foster Utley, of Chapel Hill, has looked through the University buildings, to estimate the cost of repairs. The buildings are not in such bad plight after all, though the thieves have now commenced stealing the bars of iron from under the ashes of the fire-places. The library rooms, in the topmost part of one building, are considered very unsafe. They are cracked and have already sunk down in the middle an inch or two. The fleet storms of winter have laid low the fine old elms in the campus, and there could have been hauled out from forty to an hundred loads of wood from the trees blown down and broken limbs scattered all over the common. Mr. Utley called the assistance of Mr. Elmore Woods, and both these gentlemen rate the cost of repairs at six thousand dollars to put the University in good running order. Crescent.

SAMPLING COTTON AT A CART.

BY CAPT. T. D. EVANS.

We are not in the cotton business at all—never even clean enough to put in our ear. But the way the cotton merchants here do whack into the cotton bales with their sampling knives is a caution. It made a good woman so mad the other day that she actually turned herself with a big turkey wing. We were standing in front of the Yarborough House when the cart came in. The little steer got stuck in the mud, and all the whipping and cursing and swearing couldn't make him budge an inch. The driver was a pass-looking white man, and stood shivering with his hands in his pockets like he had a 'rigger' on. His wife stood by him, a tall, bony-framed woman, and looked like her scolding niggers, she was a success. Two half-grown boys, and three slab-sided dogs floating around loose and picking the scraps up, completed the picture. We were in the cart with a bale of cotton, the result, perhaps, of an honest and hard year's labor. The cotton merchants made for the cart. Up stepped one of these gentlemen and enquired, 'What have you got?' The white man didn't even take his hands out of his pockets. It was the woman that did the talking. She replied, 'Two bags eggs, three bottles of pepper; two hens; one bundle of light wood; two pairs of socks—but them belongs to the gals—and a bale of cotton; do you want them?' He said he didn't want the other things, but, 'what's the price of your cotton?' Before the woman could answer, the merchant cut with a long bowie knife and ripped a hole in the bag big enough for a dog to go through, and he took out 'bout half a pound of cotton as a sample. The price didn't suit, and off he walked. The next cotton came was a tall, lean looking merchant, dressed in gray, and he sampled the same way at the other end of the bag, took out a sample, didn't like the price, threw it down, and left. The little boy was getting an awful thin about now, and the holes out in it looked like great ugly mouths gaping at you. The woman was getting 'riled,' too, for she kicked at one of the dogs and commenced to fan herself. But it was a quick motion of the man, and without saying a word he whipped out his knife and was about to whack into the bag, when the old lady sung out, 'look, Mr. Crot, if you cut that bag, you infernal rascal, I will knock you down if it costs my life to do it.' (Turning to her husband,) 'Jones, you're a fool. You infernal coward, I believe you'd stand there and see these cotton men suck all my eggs and eat all my pepper and hens up. I'm one of the Jinkses, I am; no man can run over me, for my grandaddy was hung for killin' a man.' Such is life. The little man with the knife had vanished, the little steer had laid down in the mud and gone to sleep, and we perceive that Jones had taken one hand from his pocket and was just sideling up to us like he wanted to hurt somebody, and we got up and cottoned.

DR LIVINGSTONS DEATH.

LONDON, March 30.—A special gives the details of Livingston's last moments. Arthur Lisng and Jacob Wainwright arrived at Suez on the 28th of March with Livingstone's body. They report him being ill with chronic dysentery several months. He was well supplied with stores and medicines. On arriving at Mulala Briood Lake, Bemba, he asked his men to build him a hut to die in. They did so on May 1st, when he took to bed and suffered greatly. He complained that he felt very badly, and on the fourth day became insensible and died about midnight. The last entry in the diary is April 27th, 1873. Before his death he spoke only of his home and family. When first seized he told his followers he intended to exchange everything for ivory, and push forward for Britain. After his death Nassick Trible removed and deposited his entrails, placing a table and plain inscription to mark the spot. The body was then preserved in salt and dried before the sun twelve days.

The native chief fired a salute and beat drums in honor of the death. The journey with the corpse to Ujiji Jan Jemboo took six months. Dillon, here suicided, being ill and blind, and his mind being affected. Livingston's body was then placed in a tarry case, together with his clothing, and papers and instruments and conveyed to Zanzibar, thence to Suez.

REMODELING BUILDINGS ON FAYETTEVILLE STREET.—We are informed that Dr. T. D. Hogg intends remodeling the three brick buildings on Fayetteville, now occupied by J. H. Manley & Co. Pulsifer, and W. M. Morris & Co. putting on iron fronts and running them back deeper. Major J. C. Winder, civil engineer, took a survey of these buildings yesterday. This will add much to the stylish appearance of our city. Crescent 28th.

TERRIBLE SCENES ON THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD.

A letter from Blue Canyon says: The snow which filled the cuts was fast becoming ice, and twenty-four hours more of the blockade would have settled us here in the Sierras for at least a week.

Happily this morning broke clear and bright. The hard snow yielding to the melting appeals of the sun, and the huge snow-plow, attacking the enemy when at his weakest, tore a passage through, and overland trains are once more running.

The great snow-plows started from this station at 10 this morning. At the same time another started from Alta. Each was propelled by eight forty-five ton engines, and the objective point of each was the same—the wreck near Emigrant Gap.

Each did its work well, though under great difficulties. The snow had become softened to a great extent, and the prow of the huge monster drove through it for some miles at a reasonable rate of speed. But the snow-king declined to give up the fight until thoroughly beaten, and twice the plow from this point became fast in his icy grasp. The eight engines struggled and groaned and puffed and quivered to no purpose. The shovels were brought into play, and the monster resurrected.

Then a fresh start was taken, and tons of snow were hurled over into the canyons, rolling down the mountain side with a noise like the rumbling of mighty thunder. At length the wreck was reached, and a way had been cloven through from to Blue Canyon.

The snow-plow was got upon the track again, and the engine, which is utterly buried—a shapeless mass of iron and wood—was removed. This cleared the road, and the workmen, who have labored almost continuously for forty-eight hours, gave vent to their joy in loud hurras and wild gesticulations. The battle has been fought and man is now triumphant.

From other parts of the line comes the news of victory. The road is now open throughout its entire length to Ogden. The delayed passenger trains are now moving onward to the East and to the West. The snow has been fairly vanquished after four days of hard fighting, and unless another furious storm bursts upon us to-night, the blockade is at an end.

This evening I met Mr. Tarboy, one of the gentlemen who accompanied the snow-plow, which is now wrecked just beyond here, and who nearly lost his life when the plow jumped the track. His story of the adventure is interesting, and I transcribe it for benefit. Mr. Tarboy said:

I stood with my teeth clenched, my fingers grasping the life-rope and my eyes fairly starting from their sockets. I held my breath and wondered if the thing would ever stop. I held my breath and only ventured to look around. The sight was awful.

The great black engines, their tops almost even with the high banks of snow, were rushing on in hot pursuit, and screaming out their delight in the sport in tones which shook the earth and echoed for miles in the mighty gorges through which we sped.

With unchecked speed the plow rushed on to Blue Canyon. There, stiff with cold, my face cut and lacerated by the fiercely driven snow, my neck and hair filled with fleece, I descended from the plow and mounted to the first engine to thaw myself out.

The great plow rushed along, rounding the steep embankment at Dutch Flat Ditch. We had just passed it when I saw the huge structure in front swayed like a drunken man. Somebody cried, 'She's off!'

There was a rush for safety. The engine gave a short, sharp, frightened scream—there was a thud, a heavy surge to the right, a violent shock, and then there came a crash. Everybody obeyed instinct's first law—the instinct of self-preservation.

I made one frantic leap through the window and sprang wildly into the snow. I came out all right, but I don't want to repeat the experiment in a hurry.

And now there comes another story of a living burial. The event occurred in Chapmanville, Penn. Anthony Coggswell of that place, is a drover and away from home a great deal. His wife, Martha, was subject to trance-like stupors, but it never occurred to Coggswell to bury her in one of them. On this side story got up and went about her household duties again, and enjoyed good health. Lately he came home from a droving tour, and found that his neighbors had buried his wife. He was very much astonished at what had happened, and insisted upon exhuming the body. The grave was opened and the coffin lid removed in the presence of friends, when it was discovered that the woman was lying on her face, and the flesh was torn from one shoulder as if by violence. There was but one explanation—Mrs. Coggswell had been buried while she was in a trance, and woke up to find herself deprived of until the last trump should sound. When Coggswell saw what had been done, he fell senseless across the coffin, and is now a maniac.

THE SWAMP ANGELS.

[Letter to the Reformer.]

In looking over some old land papers recently, I came across an old survey, made by James Edwards of 100 acres for James Lowry, situated on the mill prong of the Rock-enough-and-stick, below McPhaul's mill, dated August 9th, 1769. This was Bladen county at that time, and James Edwards was county surveyor. James Lowry bought this land from Wm. Fort, to whom it was granted by George II. in 1748. I find an other old grant of 30 acres from George III. to James Lowry and his wife, Silly Lowry, sold this land to John Gilchrist, father of the late John Gilchrist, Esq.; the deed being dated 2nd February, 1790. Signed,

JAMES (his mark) LOWRY.

The above mentioned 1,300 acres is situated on Lowry swamp, and was owned by the late Colonel McLauchin. This swamp took its name from Lowry, its former name being the mill prong of the Rock-enough swamp. About 1 mile below Colonel McLauchin's residence, in a bend of the swamp, is shown the place where James Lowry resided. A ford at that time crossed the swamp at that place, and here James Lowry kept a tavern during the Revolutionary war. He was a Tory and always active in hunting up the Whigs, and keeping the Tories posted concerning the movements of old Argus McNeill, Duncan McBryde, John Gilchrist and others. When peace was declared, this neighborhood being too hot for him, he sold out and moved down near where Silas Atkins lived, and in that neighborhood his descendants have continued to reside ever since. The old tradition in this section gives the origin of the Lowrys as follows: On the banks of the James river there lived, about 1740, James Lowry. He emigrated from England and settled near Fredericksburg, Va. He was a type of the bluff, English character—rich, haughty and proud. An only daughter, educated in all the accomplishments of the times, and two sons comprised his family. For several years the family lived in peace, happiness and sweet content, until the father was woken to the terrible consciousness that his daughter was enceinte. Then came the storm—and her father sternly demanded to know the father of her unborn babe; to his still greater horror, she admitted that a negro was its father. Her father then determined to hide her shame and bury her disgrace deep in the wilderness of North Carolina. He therefore sent her on with his two sons, who left her on the mill prong of the Rich swamp, with a man by the name of Henry O'Berry. Her father died broken-hearted, and his two sons returned to England—she died in giving birth to her child, who was nursed and raised up by O'Berry, who gave it the name of James, probably from some fatluation from the child's mother.

Whether Silly Lowry was white, Indian, negro or mulatto, is not stated. The above history of the Lowrys has always passed current in the neighborhood. Henry Berry Lowry probably took his name from O'Berry.

WEDNESDAY.....APRIL 8, 1874.

THE PROHIBITORY LAW.

The first vote under the act of the last Legislature, authorizing the people of any township to decide for themselves the question of prohibition or otherwise, was taken here on the 29th ult. There was no excitement on the subject, and evidently there will be no hostile array of temper in the matter.

Nor should there be. It is a question of policy for reason, not passion, to decide. It is true it is a new question, one involving a departure from the customs and habits of all past time, and calling for the exercise of restraints and sacrifices totally unknown to the people. But it is a question presented to their reason, their discretion, their religious convictions, to their moral sense. It is a question to be decided upon these grounds; grounds as impregnable, that no arguments, save those founded upon long tolerated customs, or the ideas of personal independence can be arrayed against them.

As between temperance and its converse; between the happiness and prosperity of a man or a community practicing the duties of perfect abstinence, or going into the opposite extreme, no one will have the hardihood to institute a comparison unfavorable to the first condition. There will be one unanimous response. It is only when the question of abstinence or prohibition is presented arrayed in the habiliments of fanaticism or clothed with the terrors of the law, that it becomes offensive, that it arouses opposition, and that is incurs hostility.

This is precisely the strength of the position of those who advocate the law under consideration and who urge the adoption of its provisions by the people of the township. Fanaticism is disarmed. It does not appear in the contest. It leaves the field to be won by the ascendency of reason. The law does not appear offensively. It does not command anything to be done imperatively. It leaves the subject to the decision of the voters. A majority one way or the other settles it, for one year.

We have learned by long experience in the practical workings of our institutions to acquiesce in such decisions, and to accept the voice of the majority as the settlement of disputed theories. In which way, therefore this subject of prohibition will be decided, neither side can complain. It is a fair open fight, upon well defined lines. Let there be, therefore no bitterness, nor animosities, but let each side present its reasons honestly and fairly.

We will say nothing more at present except to express the hope that the law will be adopted, and that for one year at least the trial be made, and a fair test given of the results of a total suppression of the liquor traffic, and a comparison made of the different results to the morals, the happiness and the prosperity of the township.

THE LATE TREASURER OF VA.

It is with regret that we notice the arrest of Col. Mayo, Treasurer of Virginia on the charge of misappropriating the State funds. It would really seem that the moral atmosphere is so corrupt that no one entrusted with public monies is free from its taint. The superabundance of money since the war has engendered habits of extravagance which will be gratified at the expense of reputation, and no previous high character, nor responsibility of position seem to be safeguards against its corrupting influences.

The arrest and conviction of Coleman, and now the arrest of Col. Mayo show that even honest Old Virginia was not able to preserve her name unstained. It is a wholesome warning to all of us at the South, who are apt to be vain-glorious of our honesty, and who are so prone, in pointing to the frequent instances of dishonesty at the North, to offer up the prayer of the Pharisee. 'I thank Thee that I am not as other men are.'

In justice to Col. Mayo, it may be said that during the progress of the peculations charged against him, it was believed he was not in his right mind, and it appears to be certain now, after his arrest, that he is violently insane.

The charges against him are, that he has been in the practice of exchanging the bonds known as consols, the coupons of which are marked 'receivable for taxes,' for 'peelers' which have no such value.

The consols were exchanged with the brokers for peelers, who paid three or four per cent differences in cash. This amount reaching several thousand dollars; and which was rightfully the property of the State, Col. Mayo is unable to account for.

Township School Committeemen:

YOU are required by an amendment made to the School Law by the last Legislature, to report to the County Treasurer, the amount due each District in your respective Townships, and cannot pay Orders drawn on me for Teachers' wages until you make your reports.

D. C. PARKS,
March 18 2. County Treasurer.

A MAGNANIMOUS PRESIDENT.

How much the welfare of a people is made to depend upon the personal feelings of their rulers, and how much of disaster or oppression is due to wounded vanity or pride, has an illustration in the result of an interview between the delegation of tax-payers from South Carolina and President Grant.

After deploring the condition of South Carolina, as he did that of Louisiana, he said that these were sovereign and independent States; still while it was impossible for the departments of the General Government to interfere [!!].

The condition of things in South Carolina was the fault of the white people themselves, he had at the close of the war refused to accept the condition which the war had forced upon them.

But the real obstacle to his interposition, he let out in the following remarks: 'I cannot allow the occasion to pass without calling your attention to a speech delivered in South Carolina, though I do not know the author, which has done the worst personal injury that I have ever suffered from any other source, and I cannot refrain from the remark, that it abstracts somewhat from the sympathy which would naturally be excited in behalf of your purpose.'

The gentleman assured him that no such speech had been delivered on the floor of the Convention, and that a purely political address by an antagonist of the administration had been purposely garbled by the Republican press of the State to bring the convention into disrepute.

At which explanation the President was much pleased, and hoped something might be done to ameliorate the condition of the State, &c, &c.

And this is republican government! A sovereign State, degraded, oppressed, pillaged, turned over to the rule of ignorance and barbarism, kept in awe by the tyranny of military rule, scourged by the rapacity of the carpet bagger, its intelligence insulted and defiled, and its worth and its virtue ignored, that the President of the United States may have revenge for, perhaps the outspoken indignation of a man goaded to frenzy by intolerable grievances, and whose justifiable utterances were tortured into what he did not mean or say, by the corrupt Press which sustained this reign of corruption?

Shades of Washington! That the American people should so soon have reached that place of government, when personal will and personal feeling should be able to shape its policy, and decide the affairs of the governed!

THE UNIVERSITY.

On our first page will be found an item from the Raleigh Crescent in relation to the repairs of the University, preparatory to its resuscitation.

We think from our own observation on the Buildings that the gentlemen whose names are mentioned in connection with the estimates for repairs are wide of the mark in their conclusions. Of course we venture an opinion diffidently in opposition to that of men who have such things professionally in charge.

But we found every building in the college out of repair, every one more or less dilapidated, some so utterly ruined as to be little more than mere shells. We suppose that it will require four times, at least, the sum estimated by these gentlemen, to do the needed work. And if it be best at once to restore a sufficient sum, rather than to begin with an amount far below what must be required, to be drawn afterwards, reluctantly from the public purse, with the added odium of ignorance or deception on the part of the trustees, or contractors.

A committee of the Trustees, will report at the meeting to be held at Raleigh during this week, and they will present such facts as will be a safe guide.

"OFF WITH HIS HEAD."

Nason of the Republic-Courier of Newbern, and for some years Postmaster of that city, has been removed, to give place to Hubbs, the unsuccessful editor of the now defunct 'Times.' Nason of late has not been to parlor accord with his own party. He had ingenuity enough to see that it was destroying itself by its corruption, and disregard to the signs of the times. He has counselled it to unload. Grant has taken him at his word, in one sense, and has unloaded himself of Nason, whose words of counsel were becoming unpalatable from their candor.

Look out for Nason now.

DEATH OF HON. S. P. HILL.

We regret to learn this this gentleman died at his residence in Caswell county last week of consumption. He was a lawyer of high character in the profession and had occupied a prominent position in the politics both of his county and of the State. He was at different times a member of the Legislature and was at one time Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Hill was, we suppose, about 52 years of age.

INDEPENDENT GRANGE,

Cash System

BEGINS AT THE

BRICK STORE

Monday April 20th 1874.

I HAVE been selling GOODS on the old of hunt for three years and what I have made is on my books, which does not do good. I can not meet my indebtedness with these accounts.

THE CREDIT SYSTEM

Operates INJURIOUSLY only to the

HONEST MAN.

In doing this credit business, we have to sell goods at MORE THAN THEIR VALUE to the

to protect ourselves against those who do not pay. We have parties owing us fifty to five hundred dollars who have been owing from two to eighteen months; they come in and price an article and then blow you up, and want to know why it is they can go to Raleigh or some other little town and buy it at a

LESS PRICE.

The reason is, you send the money to pay for it, and have got and tried to find that I cannot sell you or others at these prices. I am tired of hearing of what can be done at other points. So I shall go to work and

PRICE MY GOODS AT CASH VALUE

AND SELL AT ONE PRICE.

I want every one that pays for what they buy to help me out in this new undertaking by coming in, and see what difference the CASH system will make in his years supply.

I still take such BARTER as I can handle at CASH prices.

I give this notice in time so as to treat all alike.

I dont want to lose any Customers, but if I do, I do it in self defence. I do Rather than ruin myself.

To My Customers

That have been running accounts and paying promptly, I will say, that it is to your interest to help me out in this matter by paying in future for what you get, the difference in prices will enable you to save 25 per cent in twelve months.

In the first place if you pay Cash you will buy a great deal less than if you had a running account, and secondly, you will buy for 20 per cent less. To the party that always pays when they purchase I will say it is the scheme for you.

You have been paying for others' bad debts.

And I am determined most that your money shall bring its worth.

Remember April 20th.

THE

GOOD BARTER TAKEN AT CASH PRICES.

I AM receiving the NICEST line of

SPRING GOODS

That I have yet shown you. Accounts unpaid on April 20th will be left for collection after that date, and will be treated in the same way. MONEY or BARTER, Don't want any notes.

PERRY DAVIS'

PAIN-KILLER,

HAS been tested in every variety of climate and by almost every nation known to America and is the unbought, unbiased and spontaneous friend of the missionary and the traveller, on sea or land, and no one should travel on our Lakes or Rivers without it.

Since the PAIN KILLER was first introduced and sold with such extensive sale, many Liniments, Ointments, Lotions, Pain Killers, and other Remedies have been offered to the public, but not one of them has ever attained the truly enviable standing of the PAIN KILLER.

WHY IS THIS SO?

It is because DAVIS' PAIN KILLER is what it claims to be a Reliever of Pain.

Its Merits are Unsurpassed.

If you are suffering from INTERNAL PAIN, Twenty to Thirty Drops in a little Water will almost instantly cure you. There is nothing to equal it for

Colic, Cramps, Spasms, Heart Burn, Diarrhea, Dissentery, Pain, Wind in the Bowels, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache,

In sections of the country where prevails, there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them. A few drops in water, will prevent sickness or the ill troubles from change of water.

From Foreign countries the calls for Pain Killer are great. It is found to

Cure Cholera when all other Remedies Fail

When used Externally as a Liniment, nothing gives quicker ease in Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Stings from Insects, Sand Scalds. It removes the fire, and the severest pain for speedy cures. Those suffering with RHEUMATISM, GOUT, or NEURALGIA, want a positive cure, they find the PAIN-KILLER gives them relief when no other remedy will.

It gives instant relief from Aching Teeth.

Every House-Keeper should have it at hand, and apply it on the first attack of the Pain. It will give satisfactory relief, and save suffering.

Do not trifle with yourself by trying unlisted remedies. Be sure you call for, and get the genuine PAIN KILLER, as many worthless nostrums are offered for sale on the great reputation of this valuable Medicine.

Directions accompany each bottle.

Price 25c., 35c., and 50 per Bottle.

The Alpine.

For April is at hand, and equals in beauty any of its predecessors. The views of Lake George are beautiful in the extreme One of the effects of this publication is to cultivate a patriotic sentiment by the presentation of striking features in American scenery and demonstrating that it is not necessary to go abroad to find the grand and the beautiful in nature.

The Press Convention.

Major Englehard President of the Press Association of North Carolina, has issued an official call for the Annual meeting of the Association to be held in the city of Raleigh on the 12th of May. (Tuesday)

Mr. C. S. Brown of the National Hotel has extended an invitation to the members of the Association to be the guests of his excellent house during the session.

We hope the meeting will be fully attended.

Far From Home.

We are at the depot a car from the Chesapeake and Ohio, Rail Road, hauled at Richmond for this place. Think of the grand idea suggested; An unbroken connection by rail with the Ohio river and the illimitable regions, and exhaustless wealth of the great west? When will our people learn to appreciate their advantages?

Dr. LINDLEY of the firm of Greene Lindley & Bentley of Charlotte, was in town on Thursday last. He is travelling in the interest of his valuable Medicines which have gained a wide spread and well deserved reputation.

Mr. Norwood respectfully desires, on account of personal considerations, that his name may not be urged in connection with the nomination of candidate to the next General Assembly.

It is now understood that W. A. Smith positively declines to be a candidate for re-election, and yields to the ambition of other unsatisfied aspirants. Most probably the fight on the convention will be a fierce one, for there is no love lost between Ike Young and Willie D. Jones, and both want it.

On our side, a number of prominent gentlemen are named as opponents. We do not feel called upon to express any preference, and shall not do so. The convention will decide, and we will acquiesce in its decision. We are satisfied that with good judgment in the selection and prudence and vigor continued, in the conduct of the campaign, the District will be redeemed.

"Five Minutes for Refreshments!"—Everybody who has traveled by railroad has heard the above announcement, and has probably suffered from eating too hastily, thereby serving the seed of dyspepsia. It is a comfort to know that the Peruvian Syrup will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia, as thousands are ready to testify.

Wood's Household Magazine.

The April number now upon our table, well sustains its reputation as first-class live publication. While its contents are not deep or scientific, its pages are free from trashy sensational stories, and are full of helpful, sunny reading that goes home to the heart. The magazine contains its usual number of illustrations, and its general appearance compares favorably with the higher priced magazine. Subscription price one dollar a year; with chromo Yosemite one dollar and a half. Subscription may begin with any number.

Hillsboro.

What Hillsboro has lacked [illegible] has a healthy [illegible] the prosperity and growth of Durham. We are sincere in the expression of pleasure that the future is destined, and hope Durham will try to keep pace with Hillsboro, increasing in population and elevation in business, as she has begun. It is the boast or reward of the energy, industry, and success of her citizens. Durham is an Orange County town, and we rejoice in its success, as pride at her prosperity as if we were one of her citizens. The interests of the whole county are in common, and what benefits one portion or citizen of it, or any village or city of her growth would be as absurd as the envy of a father of the good fortune of one of his own children.

But it is impossible to avoid drawing a contrast between Durham, once an insignificant rail-road station, (and that but a few years back) now, a vigorous town with a name extending not only over our own land, but with a fame penetrating the remotest regions of the earth, and Hillsboro,—so old as to be historic, with advantages of location and of health which admit no comparison—known only for its pleasant society, its salubrity, and drawing its repute mainly from the memories of its former intellectual preeminence.

It is painful to make the admission, but the place despite transient flashes of reviving life manifests as yet little of that spirit which gives the hope of progress. It has as yet caught none of that impulse which is hurrying younger communities to fortune.

We have often called attention to the great advantages this place possess. It is not worth while here to repeat them. It is enough to say that the failure to improve them rests upon ourselves alone. The same energies which have built up Durham, could have been concentrated here; almost the identical population, the business men and manufacturers could have been attracted and maintained here with proper encouragement. But sapping indifference, petty jealousies, want of unanimity, selfishness, have paralized the good will and also arrested for years the growth of her sister village. Recovery of her growth would be as absurd as the envy of a father of the rapid thriving of one of his own children.

NORFOLK.

Our Norfolk Correspondence.

NORFOLK VA., March 30th 1874.

Dear Recorder:—The harbor of Norfolk has presented a very animated appearance during the week just passed, and a marine painter would have been delighted this morning, could he have seen the blue water reflecting scores of white sails, lighted up by the morning's sunshine.

During the week ending on Saturday the 28th, we had in port 72 Steamers, 1 Ship, 2 Barks, 2 Brigs, 90 Schooners, 34 Sloops, 5 Barges making a grand total of 206 vessels of all classes.

Custom House returns compiled for the month in a comparative form, show an increase for March '74 over March '73 of over 25,000 tons, and there is no doubt that Norfolk is improving.

For this we are greatly indebted to the brains, capital and energy which we have attracted from the Old North State.

A comparison made by the Landmark shows for the week ending on the 27th, that New Orleans received 17,133 bales, Norfolk 12,401, New York 8,231, Savannah 8,601 and the other cotton ports smaller quantities. In this connection I may mention that a Swiss gentleman, Mr. Rothschar, has recently visited Norfolk for the purpose of making arrangements to ship cotton to Havre where his house, that of Zellinger and Blume, has a branch. He himself was one of the representatives of Switzerland at the Vienna Exposition, where he was one of the Commissioners on the part of his government. He brought credentials to Fox & Allmado and left Norfolk greatly pleased at what he saw.

No man acquainted with the new mechanism of the cotton trade, which brings buyers into the South, even to interior towns like Raleigh and Charlotte, can doubt that there are great profits to be reaped hereafter by the people of the South, provided we can have a decent supply and tolerable organization of labor.

Just now our people are very much moved at the painful disclosures in the Coleman Mayo case. The universal voice condemn it the first, and with equal unanimity, acquits the accused of criminality.

There have been four cases of insanity in the immediate family of Colonel Mayo and his own mind is undoubtedly shattered.

Among the candidates for the office of Treasurer the name of the Hon. R. M. T. Hunter is mentioned, and if he will accept I suppose there will be no doubt about his appointment.

L.

Wilmington.

Our Wilmington Correspondence.

WILMINGTON, March 28th 1874.

Dear Recorder.—I write you this on Good Friday, a day settled upon without a doubt of its authenticity, as the Anniversary of the day on which the Messiah died on the cross for you, and for me. And for worlds upon worlds of dead, and living, and yet to be, sinners. There were six churches open here to-day for services—four Episcopal, one Roman Catholic, and one Lutheran—for you must know that this latter Church clings to many of the old observances of the Church in which Luther was bred. They have their Gloria in Excelcis, their Te Deum and some other portions of the service precisely similar to those used in the Episcopal Church.

The congregations to-day everywhere, were all large, serious and devout, and among them you would have found a much larger portion of gentlemen, and especially of young gentlemen than were generally enrolled under the banner of the Church Militant at any time previous to the war. This is one of the few blessings that "grim-visaged war" left behind him in the spring of 1865.

It is a lovely day with us, and as I sit by the open window at work, I cannot but dream of the green woods and the bright waters that mingle somewhere? Why, just about seven or eight miles due east of this curiosity, and when I begin to feel, the secretion of the locomotive will never awake the slumbering echoes. To many of us, Wrightsville and Masonboro will be just about as far distant as Cape May or Long Branch. Still there are some earnest ones still struggling forth to the light from the prolific brains of the enterprising Sound Rail-Roaders. They now talk of building the road of wood and deferring the iron part of it to a more convenient season, when men's hearts shall be more approachable, and greenbacks a little more plentiful than they are now.

It is not quite warm enough for us to talk politics here yet, for it is strange that our canvassing falls due in the hottest season. Still there is much of it being done and "things is workin," some of them I must be confessed, after a very peculiar fashion. Neither party has yet made up its ticket, although it seems to be settled fact that Judge Rose is to stump the District for a second Judicial term.

Little Tom Sutton of Bladen, a very recent convert to Radicalism who has scarcely as yet flashed his maiden sword, at the polls, will probably elbow Cockade Cantwell out of the Solicitor's office. Whom they have centered upon for the honor of being beaten out of his boots for Congress, is not as yet known. We can truly pity the poor fellow, whoever he may be.

But enough of this.

Yours,
CAPE FEAR.

The Hop.

An ill-natured shower overtook us on the way to the Hop at the Barracks on Monday evening, and we ingloriously retraced our steps. We are therefore unable to say anything about it, if the ladies, but will try to do the occasion justice next week.

A match game between the cadet's club, and a club from Raleigh was to have been played on Tuesday. At the time of writing it is raining heavily which may interfere with the programme. More next week.

THE AMERICAN FARMER for April is received with its usual freight of seasonable matter for the husbandman.

All branches of rural life are duly treated, and by experienced hands, the number and ability of the correspondents of this standard old journal contributing in a great measure to its usefulness.

All the staple crops, live stock, fruits, flowers, &c, receive full attention.

None of our country readers but ought to subscribe for the Farmer.

Published by Sam'l Sands & Son, No. 9 North St., Baltimore, Md., at $1.50 a year, 5 copies $5.00. Specimen numbers sent free.

Our tobacco reports from Durham for the last two weeks, were received too late for insertion. We go to press on Tuesday morning. We hope hereafter to present them regularly.

Visit of the Trustees.

Col. W. L. Steele and P. C. Cameron, Esq. a portion of the Committee on the part of the Board of Trustees of the University, visited Chapel Hill on Friday last with a view of examining the condition of the buildings and grounds, and forming some estimate of the cost of necessary repairs.

They spend a portion of two days in their examination. We will not anticipate the report which will be made to the Board at the meeting in Raleigh on the 9th by any information gathered from the Committee except to say, that they believe that the buildings may be put in a state of repair to accommodate a limited number of students, and thus put the institution again into being for a sum not very greatly in excess of what is given in the estimates mentioned elsewhere in this paper.

We may add that the action of the President (so called) Pool towards them was such as to warrant the belief that every obstacle which can be suggested by executive malice and ignorance, will be thrown in the way of the new board, and that it is no part of the plan of Caldwell or Pool to give way without embarrassing the subject with contest and factious of position

The contest for Sumner's seat attracts more attention than it deserves. Ballotings on three or four successive days have taken place without success. Dawes on the 4th ballot had ninety five, Hoar 78 Cards who has the support of the Democrats 71.

BITTERS.

THESE Bitters must become the universal remedy of the age. There is nothing like them or to equal them under the sun. They restore the weak, invigorate the feeble, and give new life and tone to the broken down system. In miasmatic and malarious districts they are worth a ship load of Quinine powders and pills. They are especially adapted to persons suffering from Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Costiveness, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Chills and Fever and Piles.

TO DELICATE FEMALES,

Ladies, old or young, will find these Bitters especially adapted to diseases peculiar to their sex. Nervousness, Lassitude, Want of Appetite and General Debility, all yield to the magic charm of these inestimable Bitters.

"My Chills are gone. I can hardly believe it."

"Send me one case PERRY'S Bitters again. Nothing like them here."

"Surely they are the most delightful wine tonic in the world."

"Dr. Wilson says that you are a private benefactor."

"Hurrah! No more Rheumatism."

"No more headache, thanks to you!"

We could fill this paper twice over with just such genuine extracts, but the simple must suffice. Our Bitters are prepared under the supervision of DR. D. S. PERRY, Member of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, London, England, and of the Medical Clinic of Glasgow.

All Orders should be address to the

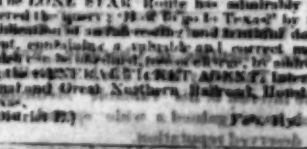
Iron in the Blood



PERUVIAN SYRUP

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, an easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the Blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and every wasting, searching out morbid accretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fever, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility, by a poor state of the blood. Being free from Alcohol in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.
